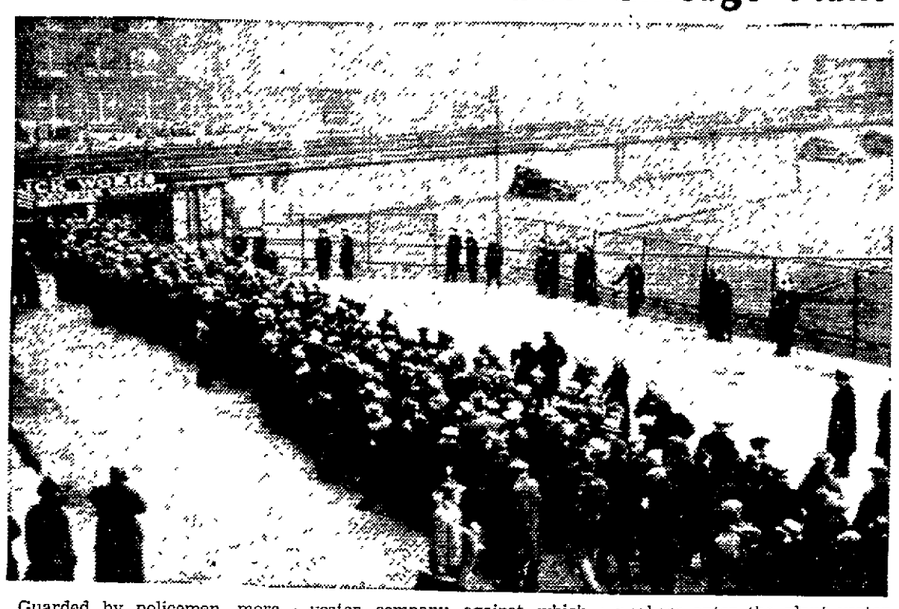
YUGOSLAVIA MOVES INTO AXIS

Violence Breaks Out In Defense Strikes

AFL Workers Enter Struck Chicago Plant



Guarded by policemen, more than 3,000 members of a newly-formed American Federation of Labor union are shown above as they entered the McCormick plant of the International Harvester company against which the CIO's Farm Equipment Workers' union has been conducting a strike since Feb. 28. More than 1,000 CIO union members watched the AF of L workers enter the plant yesterday. Police today reported numerous instances of violence against men entering the plants and increased their force from 700 to 1,000.

Chicago Police Report Attacks on Employes; Mediation Board Organizes.

BULLETIN

BETHLEHEM —(U.P.)— Sheriff W. Calvin Oickel of Northampton county appealed to Gov. Arthur H. James today for aid in maintaining order at the strike bound parent plant of the giant Bethlehem Steel corporation.

BULLETIN

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— A spokesman for the CIO-farm equipment workers organizing committee announced today that strikes will be called at all sixteen plants of the International Harvester company in retaliation for the reopening of the McCormick works here with AFL labor.

Violence broke out in two strikes affecting national defense industries today, as President Roosevelt's 11-man mediation board gathered in Washington for its first meeting.

At the parent plant of the Bethlehem Steel corporation in Bethlehem, Pa., workmen clashed and tear gas was used by city police to prevent further trouble as the CIO Steel Workers Organizing committee called a strike after the Employes Representative Plan called an election of officers for today. The SWOC has termed the ERP a company union.

At Chicago, roving groups of what Police Captain John Stege called "goon squads" assaulted numerous work-bound employes near the McCormick plant of the International Harvester company.

Meanwhile, in Washington the mediation board was organizing to tackle its task of smoothing industrial disputes, but with only public opinion as its enforcement weapon. The board is

Led Yugoslavs Into Axis

Under the leadership of its premier, Dragisa Cvetkovic, (lower left), and its foreign minister, Alksander Cincar-Markovic, (lower right), Yugoslavia became a member of the Axis today, though it was a move against the wishes of many Yugoslavs. Street demonstrations took place in Belgrade (top) and police and the army were under orders to put down any outbreaks of violence.

Given Pledge Troops Won't Cross Nation

Exempted From Giving Military Aid To Nazis, Italians; Speedy Showdown Seen; Clashes of Germans, Greeks Reported

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—Great Britain, it was said in reliable quarters today, will refrain from breaking off diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia despite that country's adherence to the Axis.

(By Associated Press)

With a solemn German pledge that no Axis troops would march through her territory, Yugoslavia signed the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance in Vienna today in ceremonies attended by Adolf Hitler.

Well-informed Vienna sources declared Germany specifically exempted Yugoslavia from giving military aid to the Axis and guaranteed the Balkan kingdom's territorial integrity.

In this respect, the terms of the pact—if faithfully observed by the Axis—apparently averted a severe blow to the defense plans of Britain and Greece against an expected Nazi invasion of Greece.

Military observers said that free passage of German troops through Yugoslavia's Vardar river valley would have collapsed the British-Greek plan to stand along the 30-mile-wide Struma river line—intended only to block an attack from Bulgaria—and compelled them to fight along the 60-mile Vardar river front and possibly defend the whole 200-mile line from Albania to Turkish Thrace.

Hitler's Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop gave the pledge to Yugoslav Regent Prince Paul that Axis troops would not violate Yugoslavia's frontiers.

Otherwise, it was said, the pact is the same as those previously signed by Hungary, Rumania, Slovakia and Bulgaria.

An unofficial version of the document said Yugoslavia agreed to permit the transport of war and hospital equipment as well as wounded through her territory—which Greece has already warned Yugoslavia she would regard as a "hostile act."

Von Ribbentrop promised that Germany, Italy and Japan would respect Yugoslavia's sovereignty "for all time" and that "the governments of the Axis powers during this war will not permit the marching or transport of troops through Yugoslav territory."

Authoritative London quarters, swiftly reacting to the completion of Hitler's latest "telephone conquest," said Britain reserved the right to attack any German troops appearing in Yugoslavia.

With the Adriatic kingdom newly enrolled in the Axis bloc, Hitler's Balkan armies were safeguarded from a possible flank attack from Yugoslav territory—thus clearing the decks for the long-expected "battle of the Balkans" which appeared ready to break at any moment.

Observers saw these danger signals for a quick showndown:

1. Soviet Russia pledged benevolent neutrality to Turkey, in the event that Turkey is "obliged to enter the war for the defense of her territory." Turkey is Britain's

(By United Press)

ABOARD S. S. PAN-NEW YORK, At Sea — Nineteen men were feared lost early today as the 9,316-ton tanker, Cities Service-Denver, blazed from stem to stern, 80 miles south of Cape Lookout, N. C.

An explosion rocked the Cities Service-Denver at 11 p. m. yesterday while she was en route from Texas to New York with 150,000 barrels of crude oil. In a short while the fire was entirely out of control and her crew took to life boats. The 19 missing men were believed to have been forward at the time of the explosion ripped the ship, and to have been trapped.

Window Broken At Church Here, Stone Throwers Blamed

Police are investigating the breaking of a stained-glass window in Mayflower church on Buckingham street valued at several hundred dollars.

Trustees of the church reported that they believed the window was broken some time Saturday night. Samuel Adams, custodian, found stones on the floor of the church and holes in the window Sunday morning.

No estimate could be made of the damage to the window, trustees reported. A representative of a stained-glass window firm is due to arrive here to make an estimate of the repair cost.

Rev. L. E. Coffey of Shelby, pastor of the church, said that several members of the congregation reported hearing a group of

FREEZES FUNDS

President Ties Up Holdings of Yugoslavs in U. S.

WASHINGTON —(UNS)— President Roosevelt today ordered all Yugoslavian funds in this country frozen.

The freezing order, approved by Mr. Roosevelt from his yacht off the Florida coast and made public in Washington, followed by only a few hours the formal alignment of Yugoslavia with the Axis nations.

The commerce department estimated that there is approximately $1,000,000 of Yugoslavian wealth in the United States. American nationals are reported to have about $36,000,000 in Yugoslavian investments, of which $32,000,000 represents holdings of Yugoslavian government bonds.

LORAIN —(UNS)— Six children were left fatherless today with the death of Lee Anderson, 54, employe of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company who was killed when he fell into an eight-foot ditch near his home at nearby Avon Lake.

Anderson's body was found after a search by fellow employes who were called by his wife when he failed to return home from work.

COLUMBUS —(UNS)— Loot from a wave of "screwball" burglaries in Columbus last night:

URGES CITY TO ISSUE BONDS

State Advocates Issuance as Means To Correct Sewage System Deficiencies.

F. H. Waring, chief engineer of the state department of health, today asked the city of Mansfield to float a bond issue for the general improvement of the sewage system.

Waring made his suggestion in a letter to Mayor William J. Locke in reporting on an inspection made of the city's system on March 11. He advocated the use of the surplus in the sanitary sewer fund as capital for the issuance for the program.

Mayor Locke stated that the city would not take such action immediately because of the unsettled conditions due to war. He said that he felt that it would be unwise to take any such step until the city knew what it wished to accomplish. Several inspections by different engineers, said the mayor, have resulted in conflicting recommendations.

Floyd D. Brown, consulting engineer, suggested an additional digestor for the city's $430,000 sewage disposal plant at the cost of $30,000. On the other hand, another group reported that the existing equipment could easily handle the problem if the rain water was removed from the sani-

EXPECT MINIMUM WAGE TO BE SET

Beauty Operators' Pay Scale Would Start At $14.50.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— George A. Strain, state director of industrial relations, is expected within a few days to place into legal effect regulations prescribing minimum wages and maximum hours for Ohio beauty operators.

If and when Strain issues the "mandatory" order, several beauty parlor owners who object to the standards probably will file court actions to test their legality and "reasonableness."

A "directory" order establishing the $14.50 to $16 wage minimums and 44-hour limit was issued by Strain 90 days ago.

BOWLING GREEN —(UNS)— A murder-suicide verdict was returned today by Coroner H. W. Mannhardt in the slaying of Laurel Robertson, 11, and the shooting of her father, Merun, 40-year-old department store clerk.

The coroner said Robertson shot his daughter and himself as his wife, Bertha, prepared his breakfast before she was to leave for Lima and a position as assistant state NYA girls' supervisor.

NOT NICE, HUH?

Nazis Call Action By America 'Unchivalrous, at Least.'

BERLIN—(AP)—Authorized Germans described today as "very unchivalrous, to say the least" the action of United States authorities in ordering the surrender of two escaped German war prisoners to Canada.

"That's putting it mildly," a spokesman said. "I'd like to go so far as to say that not even England would do a trick like that."

Counsel for the two German naval officers, Lieutenants Bernhardt Gohlke and Heniz Rottman, appealed at Ogdensburg, N. Y., yesterday from an order of immigration officials for their return to Canada.

WEATHERMAN SPRUNGER DIES

Year's Illness Fatal to Man Who Kept Weather Records Here For 16 Years.

Enos Sprunger, 65, was dead today, but just as it has for the past 17 years, the official Sprunger summary of Richland county's weather for the past 24 hours arrived on schedule.

Mr. Sprunger died this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. M. H. Fyock, 429 Beethoven street. He had been in ill health for the past year.

For 16 years, Enos Sprunger kept the records and never missed a day sending his reports to the federal government's weather station in Columbus. And he never missed a day calling The News-Journal office to provide the same information.

Ill health forced him to retire a year ago and he placed his barometers, rainfall indicator thermometers and other weather recording instruments in the custody his brother, Otto, who has compiled the weather reports since. It was Otto who compiled today's report.

Mr. Sprunger, who spent the greater part of his life in Mansfield, was born in Berne, Ind., Nov. 22, 1878. He was a member of the Church of God, in Mansfield.

He is survived by two sons, Arlo, of Shenandoah; and Chester, of Mansfield; one daughter, Mrs. M. H. Fyock, of Mansfield; two brothers, Otto and Albert Sprunger, of Mansfield; one sister, Mrs Simon Brown, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; and three grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Thursday at 1:30 p. m. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

INSULTS: Cards Caricature Hitler, Duce In Belgrade

(By International News Service)

BELGRADE—Colored postcards bearing insulting caricatures of Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini were distributed throughout Belgrade today as the Yugoslavian government plunged the nation into the Axis-Japanese alliance.

News that the tripartite pact had been signed in Vienna by Premier Dragisha Cvetovic and Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Marcovic coincided with growing unrest in Yugoslavia.

The cards and leaflets opposing the pact and denouncing the Axis dictators contained many grammatical errors. It appeared obvious that many of the cards had been hurriedly prepared—some of them by non-Yugoslavians.

Distribution of the leaflets accompanied unconfirmed reports of clashes between Yugoslavian and German troops along the Bulgarian frontier. These reports increased tension in Belgrade.

No details of the reported border clashes were received, beyond the statement that they were supposed to have occurred yesterday afternoon.

Fears, openly expressed in certain quarters, that German troops may pour into Yugoslavia now that the pact has been signed, produced an explosive situation.

Many Yugoslavians—particularly Serbians—have expressed bitter opposition to the pact during the past few days.

Another cause for alarm was a formal British diplomatic note, warning of dire consequences for Yugoslavia as a result of today's scheduled developments.

As Cvetovic and Cincar-Marcovic departed for Vienna last night, leaflets were distributed branding them at "traitors" and threatening their assassination.

The train on which the premier and foreign minister left for Vienna was heavily guarded and precautions were taken throughout Belgrade to guard against anti-German demonstrations.

RESIGNS: Graziani Leaves Command In Fascist Shakeup

(By United Press)

ROME—Premier Benito Mussolini has accepted the "resignation" of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani as commander in chief in North Africa, governor of Libya and chief of the army staff, it was announced today.

Marking the biggest shakeup in the Italian high command since the retirement of Marshal Pietro Badoglio because of the failure of Italian operations against Greece, Graziani has been replaced as commander in North Africa and governor of Libya by Gen. Italo Garibaldi.

He has been succeeded as chief of the army staff by Gen. Mario Roatta. Gen. Francesco Rossi, a division commander, succeeded Gen Rotta as vice chief of staff.

Graziani, Italy's foremost colonial soldier, is known as the "Lion of Africa." He was recognized in Italy and abroad as a competent, experienced commander.

Reports of Graziani's resignation or impending resignation have been current since the British army of the Nile threw back his invasion of Egypt and drove his forces out of eastern Libya. Much of Graziani's army and equipment was captured.

Graziani, a hard-bitten soldier, won fame for his pacification of Libya after the World war. During the Italian conquest of Ethiopia in 1935-36 he commanded the armies that operated against southern Ethiopia from Italian Somaliland.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

The Legends of Broadway.
(Number Two—The Glamor-Babes In the Woods.)

IN the Thirsty Thirties, the elfin children of Broadway were little girls—girls with rosebud lips and baby skin and gossamer garb. They worked and they lived and they danced and they dreamed in the "40" and "50" blocks east of Eighth avenue and west of Fifth. Some of them had talent, but most of them had only beauty; they all saw more of the night than they did of the day.

Eilgallen.

They danced behind footlights and on the raised platforms of night clubs; they strolled across stages wearing feathers and beads and spangles, strategically applied; they powdered their legs chalk-white and mascaraed their false eyelashes black.

They were fascinating in different ways. They came from Monterey and Waco and Hoboken and from across the seas. They were looking for careers and excitement and crisp green dollars and romance and freedom from the boredom of Suburbia.

Agnes O'Laughlin was one of Ziegfeld's most beautiful. Violet-black eyes and blue-black hair and a lovely Irish face. She lived in a cheap walk-up flat with her mother, on Eighth avenue. She was ambitious, but she had no furs and no jewels, and her boy friends were the kind who took her to a neighborhood midnight movie and bought her a soda in the drug store corner.

Agnes had Hollywood as her goal, but she wanted to make it the hard way.

And one day, it all come true for her. She had made a screen test, and the report was good. She was to see the Hollywood agent on Monday. The night after the show Agnes walked home, and the lights and the stars seemed very bright.

As she was about to enter her doorway, a girl called her from a cab parked at the curb. It was one of the chorus girls from the show. She asked if she could please spend the night with Agnes and her mother. And Agnes took her in.

About an hour later, there was a heavy knocking at the door.

It was the police—come to get Kiki Roberts, the chorus girl whose lover, Jack Diamond, had been sprayed with bullets that afternoon.

The next day's publicity was searing. It burned Agnes O'Laughlin out of the theater and out of any chance she had for a movie career.

When "The Three Waltzes" was on the boards, a chatter columnist ran a line saying that all the show-lassies in the opus owned mink coats. One of the girls, Diane Rutherford, resented the item—she had only a cloth coat She wired the information to the columnist and he ran another line about her complaint.

The day after that appeared, two of Diane's beaux sent her mink coats!

From that fabulous moment on, Diane's favorite statement was: "All that I am today, I owe to reading Broadway columns."

Three stunning gals came out of the west. Tall, blond and beautiful, they came by super-super train and their arrival on the Great White Way was heralded with all the fanfare of the Ziegfeld publicity machine. They were the beautiful Hollywood showgirls Ziegfeld had glorified in the picture "Whoopee" and was about to feature in his next stage production.

The picture was opening at the Rivoli and the three girls were guests of honor at the premiere. Afterwards, they were taken into the publicity department for more stills. As they were about to leave, one of the beauties asked timidly of the press agent:

"Would you do something for me, awfully important?"

"When the picture is through here, may I have that big picture of me out front?"

The publicist agreed, of course. The picture was an eight-foot cardboard cut-out of the girl on a horse—and wearing nothing but a couple of beads.

"You see," the beautiful blond explained, "I would like to send it to my daddy!"

The beautiful blond was Virginia Bruce. Her companions, Christine Maple and Claire Dodd.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—With due apologies for invading a province usually foreign to this department, we beg leave to report on the Love Life of a Glammer Gal—Gloria Jean.

ROBBIN COONS

Miss Jean, who will be 13 come April 13, is in the throes. Object of her devotion: Basil Rathbone.

"He isn't so terribly handsome," she confided between loving bites of a luscious custard-filled cream puff, "but maybe I shouldn't say that. I wouldn't hurt his feelings for anything. But he's so distinguished—and his VOICE—oh, his VOICE! It's wonderful.

"He heard about it—about me. I mean—and he had a little party for me. I was so THRILLED. And the other night, after his Sherlock Holmes broadcast, he signed off by saying 'Goodnight, Gloria,' and I was so excited I almost died. . . .

"Another one I'm crazy about is Brian Aherne. I love his voice. He invited me to lunch with him at the studio, and Lois and I (Lois is Gloria's sister and stand-in, aged 12) had a wonderful time. Then he sent up a present, a little table, with a card that said 'in remembrance of me.' I think he's wonderful. . . ."

THESE Schoonovers — Gloria Jean Schoonover is her real name—are a folksy bunch of people. They're a family without a star. At home, this is. They live in a seven-room house on a Hollywood hill. Their life is built with walls against any movie-inspired "fancy ideas."

Gloria's father and mother have patterned things pretty deliberately to keep the inevitable limelight on Gloria from throwing the other three children into the shade. The other girls are Sally, 16, Lois and Bonnie, six.

The scheme is based on frank recognition of the fact that Gloria, as a movie personality, would get more attention outside than the other children.

Gloria shares her extra-curricular rewards—fan presents, trophies, party invitations with Lois.

SENATE GETS STRICT DRIVER RULES BILLS

Proposals Call For Inspection of Motor Vehicles Twice Yearly, Age Limit.

COLUMBUS — Four proposed laws imposing rigid new requirements on the drivers of automobiles were brought up for a vote in the Ohio senate today.

Meanwhile the house took up the two-year extension of the one-cent-a-gallon liquid fuel tax, already approved by the senate, and Republican leaders were confident of its enactment.

The highlights of the senate automobile bills were:

Semi-annual inspection of motor vehicles, with police authorized to prohibit the operation of any vehicle considered unsafe for travel;

Requiring a driver to report an accident in which he was involved, with a maximum penalty of a $100 fine and 30 days in jail for failure to do so;

Prohibiting the issuance of a driver's license to a minor under 16, with certain exceptions;

Making the parent or guardian responsible for the misconduct of a minor driver under 18 unless proof of financial responsibility had been deposited;

Establishing a driver's examination section in the highway patrol, and

Requiring that a motorist's bond forfeiture in a traffic case be recorded with the registrar of motor vehicles.

Earlier, the house approved a bill permitting the highway department to build a super-highway similar to the Pennsylvania turnpike. It would authorize the construction of "freeways" which could be entered upon only at designated intersections. The measure goes to the senate.

The senate voted to reenact a law enabling cities to pay poor relief deficits by issuing notes against delinquent taxes. House approval is necessary.

MORE PAY UP

Mail Payments Expected to Put Tax Receipts at $675,000.

Real estate tax collections continued to pour into the county treasury today sustaining Treasurer John E. Kolb's prediction that total receipts would be close to last year's figure, $675,000.

The tax collection period closed last Thursday but payments now being recorded are those made by mail before the deadline and those made to district collectors.

Total receipts as of Monday night reached $631,539.16 and today's receipts included $1,000 from the Bellville collector. Shelby has still to send in a report, Kolb stated.

Only one week is left in which to pay personal tax returns, Kolb said. The collection period ends Tuesday, April 1. Classified collections now amount to $37,205.26, and general personal collections total $10,331.11.

HOLD INQUEST OVER SLAYING

Police Seek Solution of Death of Motorist; Body Found on Dead-End Road.

(By Associated Press)

BATAVIA—Police of three counties looked today to an inquest to aid in solving the bullet slaying of Herbert G. Beatty, 58, Ashland, Ky., furniture salesman.

Powder burns on the dead man's hands indicated he struggled for the gun or guns which poured six slugs into his head, neck, chest and arm, Sam White, Clermont county coroner said.

Farmer Earl Binning spied the body late yesterday as he stood driving a hay wagon along a short, dead-end lane four miles south of here.

Beatty left his Ashland home on a business trip to Cincinnati March 11, failed to make his usual daily call to his wife, and became the object of a police search next afternoon when his new automobile—its seat cover stained with blood and bullet holes in the left side window—was found on Cincinnati's downtown Vine street.

The abandoned car was twice tagged for parking beside a fireplug before it was investigated. Three large-caliber empty shells and a bullet were found inside.

Although a valuable ring remained on Beatty's finger and his pockets contained $1.70, his family believed him to be carrying a gold watch and a large sum of money, Clermont Sheriff Tom Brooks said.

Ashland Police Chief C. F. Brooks said Beatty habitually picked up hitchhikers.

Check Wives Who Quit Jobs To Keep Mates Out of Army

YOUNGSTOWN —(AP)— Selective service officials here are checking closely on married men whose wives suddenly quit their jobs.

Draft regulations provide generally that men with dependents should be deferred, but in some cases boards have obtained proof that the wives resigned from steady positions solely to enable their husbands to avoid serving in the army.

Several companies reported a heavy increase in the number of women leaving jobs, the resignations being the most pro-stenographers and specialized nounced among experienced factory and office workers.

Registrants can be reclassified at any time by notifying their board of changes in their status, such as marriage, births or more or fewer dependents.

WAS OVERLOOKED

Forgotten In Rush, Smothers to Death During Fire.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Forgotten in the confusion of a fire, 17-month-old Ralph Waters died by smoke suffocation today during a blaze in a south side residence.

The mother, Mrs. Monroe Waters, and neighbors rescued five other children, but the baby was overlooked until firemen got the fire under control.

HOLMES COUNTY CHURCH SECTS TO HAVE OWN DEFENSE PROGRAM

MILLERSBURG — Mennonite and Amish church members who are in the conscientious-objector class under the selective service law, have formulated plans for a "pay-their-own-way" program to aid national defense.

Opposed to bearing arms because of their religion, church members here today announced they will participate in the plan recently proposed by the National Service board for religious objectors and approved by the administration.

Holmes county has 3,600 Mennonite and Amish church members. They represent about one fifth of the county's population and because of this, the county was recently listed by the state as having the most men in Ohio in the conscientious-objector class.

Under the plan they will participate in, the Mennonites and Amish will raise funds for their own civilian work camps.

A spokesman for the churches said the first Holmes assessment would be 50 cents a member, bringing in $1,800 for a six-month period. This of course will be augmented by other religious groups throughout the nation participating in the plan.

In Ohio members of the two faiths residing in Stark, Tuscarawas, Wayne and other counties probably will join in the project.

Draft officials here say final classification of the county's 1,900 registrants will find approximately 40 per cent listed as conscientious objectors.

Funds raised by the churches will be used to provide food and clothing for the objectors in camps, which the government will build.

The camp work program probably will embody soil conservation and public health improvements.

FOR BOMBINGS

Jury Seated to Try Laborite on Destruction Charge.

AKRON—(NS)—Seating of a jury in common pleas court to try Harry D. Jones, AFL labor leader indicted on three counts of malicious destruction of property, began today.

Judge Frank H. Harvey said a 13th juror would be selected to forestall any effort to delay the trial.

Jones, business agent for the operative engineers union, vice president of the Ohio Federation of Labor and vice president of the Summit county trades and labor assembly, central body for the AFL, was charged with dynamite bombings which damaged three building projects on which CIO workers were employed last fall.

PORTSMOUTH —(UP)— Harold Bruce, 16, of Firebrick, Ky., died today in General hospital from a stab wound in the head received during an altercation in front of a Fullerton, Ky., beer parlor.

Greenup county Prosecutor Oscar Sammons said he will file a charge of wilful murder against John Haden, 24, Siloam, Ky., alleged wielder of the knife.

The body was removed to the Geiger funeral home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

"Let's go in and reconnoiter."

Up and Down THE STREET

Every time the alarm in the fire department clangs, most everyone in the city hall jumps to attention. Yesterday city employes were run ragged by Ernie Adams, city electrician. Ernie was installing three new boxes in different points in the city and made frequent test alarms which threw the place into near panic.

Community players of the future need not worry about the problem of talent for the shows. Yesterday at a performance of the group at Mansfield Senior high school Gerald Van Arnam, instructor at the school, gave several announcements preceding the opening curtain. As he completed his brief talk, a shrill voice from the audience said, "Hi, Daddy." The greeting brought down the house amid a round of applause. It was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Arnam. Mrs. Van Arnam was a member of the cast of "What a Life."

State highway patrolmen were amused this morning by a rabbit who, taking his morning stroll, was suddenly surprised by one, and then two large and ambitious dogs who gave chase. The rabbit made tracks across several lawns and then reversed his field behind a Park avenue west house. He reappeared faster than it takes to tell and resumed a hurried journey east along the street finally disappearing behind a hedge. The dogs later appeared looking somewhat confused by the whole matter, and after some futile sniffing of the morning air went disconsolately about their business.

POLICE CHECK CONNECTIONS OF SLAIN MEN

Warren Steak House Operator and Associate Killed In Gang Fashion.

(By Associated Press)

WARREN, O. — Working with meager clues and without a murder motive, police today moved swiftly to check recent connections of James Munsene, 52, and Felix Monfrino, 29, who were slain in gangland fashion before 20 horror-stricken customers of Munsene's steak house.

Munsene is a former dog track operator and Monfrino his business associate.

The two fell in a volley of bullets from the guns of two well-dressed men who strolled into the flats district cafe last night, bought a drink of whisky and suddenly began shooting.

One of the assailants shouldered Earl Huffman of Youngstown, who had been talking with Munsene, and his gun blazed at the proprietor. Two bullets creased Huffman's clothes.

The gunmen turned their fire on Monfrino as he rushed from an adjoining room.

Meanwhile the patrons huddled against the wall.

Monfrino's father, Bernard, and Munsene's brother, Tony, were among the customers.

As one gunman shouted "Let's go," the other replied calmly:

"Wait. I want to make sure he's done." With that he pumped two more shots into Munsene's body.

The gunmen fled in a waiting coupe but witnesses were unable to obtain the license number.

Benny Guanciale, a waiter in Muncene's place, known as the Prime Steak house and located at South Park and Clinton streets, said he had been instructed upon coming to work there never to point out his boss to any stranger. Guanciale added one of the gunmen earlier had asked him to identify Munsene, but that he had replied he didn't know him.

Munsene was defended by the late Clarence Darrow at a sensational trial in Jefferson, 15 years ago on bribery charges. The jury disagreed but he later pleaded guilty and was paroled on payment of $2,000 in costs.

He is survived by his widow, the brother, two sons and a daughter.

U.S. STOPS WORK ON ROAD, COUNTY BOARD PUZZLED

Commissioners Wondering If Newville Thoroughfare Will Be 'White Elephant.'

After viewing the new two-mile section of the Newville-Pleasant Hill road yesterday, Richland county commissioners were wondering today if they are going to have a "white elephant" on their hands when the war department turns the road over to them.

Although the road is far from ready for use, the federal government apparently has halted construction on it, and farmers who will be served by the route are clamoring for action, commissioners said.

The road has been a headache to the county since the Pleasant Hill dam was built. The Muskingum Conservancy district first promised to build the two-mile section of highway to replace other routes that will be flooded by waters from the Pleasant Hill reservoir.

With a change in the conservancy set-up, however, the road job was handed to the state highway department, and then to the war department.

Federal engineers promised county commissioners several months ago the route would be built by the government and turned over to the county for maintenance. That plan was acceptable to the commissioners, but they are hoping now they won't have to take over the project before it is completed and finance the rest of the job.

When completed, the road will replace the Darlington settlement road which will be in the flooded area. It will serve approximately a dozen farm homes.

Commissioners have scheduled a hearing for next Monday on the abandonment of several roads in the area, but they said the routes will not be closed until the new stretch of Newville-Pleasant Hill road is ready for travel. The hearing will be at the courthouse.

Soldier of Fortune.

Said to exceed even his superb performance as "Knute Rockne—All American," Pat O'Brien, as a soldier-of-fortune, has an exciting role in the picture, "Escape to Glory," showing Wednesday at the Ohio. The picture tells one of the most thrilling adventure stories of an unforgettable tale of danger and romance. Constance Bennett is cast opposite O'Brien and in the supporting roles are John Halliday, Melville Cooper and Alan Baxter.

Bruce In Comedy.

Virginia Bruce has the title role in the picture, "The Invisible Woman," which opens Wednesday at the Madison. It is a comedy part far different from her many romantic roles. Co-feature is "Golden Hoofs," starring Jane Withers. With her in the lead is Charles "Buddy" Rogers.

Fate of Empires.

A picture as timely as the latest news bulletin will open Wednesday at the Ritz when "A Dispatch From Reutetr's" is shown for a two-day period. Edward G. Robinson plays the leading role, that of Julius Reuter, whose speedy dispatches held within them the fate of empires and who did more to form the ethical credo of news gathering than any man in history. Edna Best portrays his sympathetic wife who drives home the lesson that the duty of a reporter is first to his people and secondly to his paper. Co-attraction is "Keeping Company," a comedy starring Frank Morgan.

All Star Casts.

Surrounded by a group of Hollywood comedy favorites, Baby Sandy has the starring role in "Sandy Gets Her Man," which is showing through Wednesday at the Park. Stuart Erwin is seen as the bashful fireman who has to turn Romeo to hold his job and competes with Jack Carson for the hand of Una Merkel. Co-feature is "Barnyard Follies," with an all-star cast, among them June Storey, Ralph Bowman, Rufe Davis, Joan Woodbury and such famous radio personalities as The Kidoolers and the De Zurik Sisters.

Romantic Comedy.

What happens when a presumably long-dead wife suddenly reappears to confront her newly married husband gives rise to the hilarious complications of the romantic comedy, "My Favorite Wife," co-starring Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, with Randolph Scott and Gail Patrick in support. As a second attraction there is "The Courageous Dr. Christian," featuring Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Lovett, Robert Baldwin and Tom Neal, at the Majestic.

She Loved a Spy + + + + + +

CHAPTER VIII

Three weeks had passed since the night Joan went to the freighter with Karl and was followed by Paul Sherman. She had not mentioned it to Karl. She wanted to solve the mystery of Paul's curious behavior for herself. She was sure that Paul meant no harm. Possibly he was jealous of Karl. Even so, Joan considered his actions childish. She suspected that Paul was following her on other occasions, too. Several times she had seen him apparently by accident when she was with Karl. During this period he was seldom in the office, though he talked to Karl over the telephone and one afternoon in early November Joan, looking over Karl's appointment book, saw that Paul Sherman would be at the club at ten-thirty that night.

"I'm going to try to see him alone," she decided, "and demand an explanation. If he doesn't tell me, I'll threaten to go to Karl about it!"

Her relationship with Karl could not have been more perfect since the night on the freighter when he told her he loved her. She felt much closer to him. At least three evenings a week Karl took her dancing. On Sundays they went for long rides across the Golden Gate bridge into Marin County, where the trees flashed their autumn reds and browns in the deep November sunshine. Everything they did together was a thrill for the girl who daily found herself more in love. Riding at Karl's side through the swiftly changing country landscape, dancing in his arms at night, having dinner with him in quiet restaurants, even sitting across the desk from him at the office brought an indescribable happiness. He was very tender with her, very gentle, and when he drew her into his arms for a good night kiss and murmured "liebchen" she felt her heart fill with enchantment.

Only Sybil was able to shatter her peace by saying, "If Karl is really in love with you, why doesn't he ask you to marry him?"

"He probably will," Joan said stubbornly, "in time. After all, we haven't known each other very long."

Karl had told her many times that he loved her. He had told her that she was beautiful and exciting. He sent her a dozen American beauty roses every Friday. He had been as tender and adoring as a man could be, but not once had he mentioned marriage.

"You still don't trust Karl, do you?" Joan asked as the girls washed the supper dishes.

Sybil shrugged as she plunged her hands into the soapy water. "There are a lot of people I don't trust. For instance, why is Paul Sherman following you?"

"I intend to find out tonight. He has an appointment at the club at ten-thirty. I'll try to see him alone for a few minutes. I'm going to ask him to explain, and if he doesn't, "I'll tell Karl."

"He probably knows about it already. It may be his orders."

"That's ridiculous!" Joan flared. "How can you dislike Karl so much? After he got you your job and has been so kind to you?"

Sybil was silent.

"You're just like Paul. You haven't anything against Karl, and when it comes to finding a real objection, you can't! You're prejudiced, and for no reason! It isn't fair! And it isn't going to do either of you any good—because I love him!" Tears filled the green eyes. "I love him and nothing can make me feel differently."

She threw down the dish towel and fled weeping to the bedroom where she flung herself upon her bed and sobbed as though her heard would break.

"You're just tired, honey!" Sybil said as she put comforting arms about her. "You don't get enough sleep. You need more sun and fresh air. Working in that shut-in office with no outside windows is enough to make anyone ill."

"Let me alone!" her sister wept. "You don't understand. No one understands how I feel."

Sybil sighed as she went back to the kitchen.

But before Joan left for the office she had kissed Sybil affectionately, saying, "I'm sorry, Syb! I guess I am tired. One of the things that's making me nervous is having Paul follow me all the time. I can't stand it any longer, and I'm going to settle it tonight."

"Do you think that Paul is in love with you?" Sybil asked thoughtfully.

Joan wiped away the traces of her tears and applied fresh makeup.

"I don't see how he could be. I've been so mean to him, and he must know how I feel about Karl. But even if he were, he wouldn't be so childish as to follow us around. What good would that do?"

"Who knows?" Sybil reached for a cigarette.

Joan adjusted her hat precariously over one eye. It was made entirely of red feathers and was striking with her black hair and white skin.

"Another new hat," Sybil commented. "You must be in love."

"It's not funny. Karl always notices what I wear. He appreciates good-looking things."

Joan hurried from the apartment. As she walked to the trolley line through the dark night, she felt strangely exhilerated. It was a thrill even to go to work when her boss was Karl Miller. Tangy autumn air seemed to hold a promise of excitement.

"The whole work is different when you're in love," Joan thought, and she pitied the girls who were neglected by this great emotion. She pitied them because they did not have a man like Karl Miller in love with them.

The Club Elite was well filled for so earl yin the evening. Joan paused to look at the crowd. She seldom had a chance to see this part of the club. The low ceiling was flooded with a soft indirect lighting. It was a pleasant intimate room. The dance floor was small but adequate. It formed a circle in front of the band which, according to Karl, was "going over big." The Club Elite was definitely a success.

The bar at one side of the room was crowded. The tall blue leather stools were filled and Joan, glancing casually at the well-dressed men and women, saw Paul Sherman. She glanced at her watch. It was a quarter of eight. She had fifteen minutes before she was due in Karl's office. Now was her chance.

"Hello," Paul said. "Is it possible that you want to see me?"

Joan sat down beside him. "I have been seeing you almost constantly for three weeks," she said significantly.

"That's a tricky hat," Paul said admiringly.

"Be serious, Paul. You know what I mean. Why have you been following me?"

"Must have been two other people. Want a drink?"

"No, thank you!" Joan exploded. "There's no use trying to evade the issue. I saw you down at the boat last night."

His brown eyes were serious. "You didn't tell Karl?"

"No! I didn't."

"Why not?"

"I didn't want you to lose your job," she confessed. "I couldn't believe that you meant any harm."

"That's very sweet of you, Joan! I appreciate your confidence."

"Well? Aren't you going to explain? If you don't, I'm going to tell him."

Paul looked at his watch. "We haven't time to talk now. You have to be in the office by eight, don't you? I'll come in later and we'll talk then. Meanwhile, please don't say anything to Karl. Promise me, Joan!"

"I won't if you'll explain."

"You have all the instincts of a detective," Paul laughed.

"That's what Karl told me once," Joan informed him. "I'll see you later."

Karl Miller was in his office. The moment Joan entered, he drew her into his arms. "That's an adorable hat," he said, kissing her fondly.

"I knew you'd like it!" She pressed her cheek against his. Impossible to think about Paul Sherman, impossible to worry, or even care what happened in the rest of the world when she was in his arms.

"I'll be out of the office until ten," Karl told her. "Try to finish those letters."

"Paul wants to see you at ten-thirty," she reminded him.

"I'll be back. Good night, liebchen!"

Another kiss and he was gone. Joan turned back to her typewriter wondering how she could keep her mind off Karl Miller and type these letters. Karl was such a man! He had lived. He was not an inexperienced boy in his twenties. Paul must be twenty-six or seven but he seemed a boy compared to Karl, Karl who was so sophisticated — so completely sure of himself.

"Stop thinking about him!" Joan scolded herself and, fitting a sheet of paper into her typewriter, she began to work.

It was almost ten when the door opened without warning. Joan thought it was Paul but it was Eric Strom, Karl's partner, who stepped inside. Joan had not seen him since the night he dined with Karl and her.

"Ah! Miss Leland! You are alone, I see. And looking very beautiful as always." Eric's voice was soft but his eyes regarded her insolently.

"Karl will be back any minute," Joan said quickly.

"I don't think so. I left him only a few minutes ago, quite absorbed in a business matter. Mind if I have a drink?"

"You're Karl's partner. It's your office, too." She was trying to control her dislike of him.

"You are very generous," Eric Strom said, but he did not open the bar concealed in the wall. Instead he approached her desk.

"You'll have to excuse me," Joan said, suddenly afraid. "I'm very busy."

But with a quick step, Eric was beside her. Drawing her to her feet, he attempted to kiss her. "You beautiful little devil!" he murmured.

Joan was terror-stricken. She tried to scream but no sound would come. She pulled away with all her strength but Eric Strom only laughed.

Milk Mixtures For Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of milk. Ohio U. Defeated In Finals of Bucket Tournament

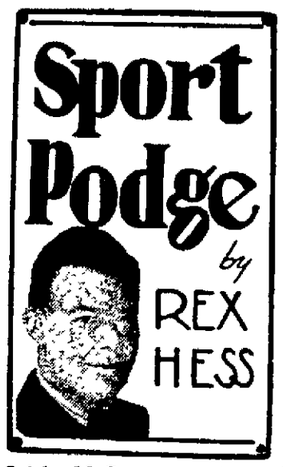
Sport Podge by REX HESS



Irish McGee, operator of Possum Run golf course, breezed into the office yesterday, fresh from a winter's job as pro at Brownsville, Texas Country club, to tell us about:

A 20-day hunting trip in New Mexico.

I hope McGee keeps his eye on the ball better than he does his mind on his work, or that Possum Run will be a dangerous pasture this summer. But I'm told there's really nothing to fear on that score..

"We went with the Brownsville sheriff on one of the best hunting trips a man can take in this country," McGee declared. "New Mexico has everything you'd want to hunt, this side of Africa. And the ducks!"

Irish has only a light milk-chocolate tan to show for his winter in Texas. "The sun was so hot we had to wear hats," he explains, "but I got as black as a Mexican on that hunting trip.

"With the sun outside and the frijoles inside we had a hot old time all winter. We've been trying to thaw out ever since we got back last Wednesday. My eight-year-old boy keeps saying: 'Pop, let's go back to Texas where it's hot."

* * *

The heat must have gotten him for sure. I had a tough time trying to get him back on the subject we should have been discussing:

How soon will we be playing golf up in this hardy clime?

"About the middle of next month if this weather keeps up," he hazarded. "Some of the rabid bugs were out yesterday hitting the ball around. But they'll stay off those greens for a while yet."

Which reminds me, I shot my last golf on March 15, 1937. It's an old man's game, they used to say before the kids showed 'em how. So I should be just about ripe for a comeback.

* * *

"I liked," said McGee, "that column you had on bowlers spending all their dough to improve their game and then hesitating to try out their game in a tournament.

"I liked it, because golfers are the same way."

"Golfers and bowlers are the same kind of people," I told him. "They pay to play, and perhaps that's the reason they're the most rabid of all sportsdom's constituents."

I shot a golf into the air.
It fell to earth. I knew not where.
I looked for it deep in the woods,
Something told me that I should.
I saw a guy in the darkening gloom—
Mr. Livingston. I presume.

BARONS HOPE FOR PLAY-OFF CLINCHER

CLEVELAND — (NS) — Holding a two-to-one edge in games in a three-out-of-four series, the Cleveland Barons tonight hope to clinch their American league hockey playoff series with the Providence Reds without leaving their home ice. If the Reds square the series the final game will be played in Providence Thursday night.

BERRY MEETS YAROSZ

AKRON — (NS) — Bobby Berry, former Cleveland Golden Gloves champion, today made last-minute preparations for the biggest step thus far in his professional career. Berry meets Teddy Yarosz, former world middleweight champion, tomorrow night in a 10-round battle at Akron Armory.

Curtain Falls On City Loop

Athletics and Blue Goose Battle For Crown.

THE curtain falls tonight on another successful City A basketball league season with the championship battle between the Blue Goose Sohioans, winner of the first round, and the Mansfield Athletic Supply, second round winner.

The Sohioans are the defending champions of the 1939-1940 season and will have to give their all, in order to retain their championship against the onrushing Mansfield Athletic Supply team, which has been improving with every game and closed out the regular season with five straight victories to clinch the second round crown.

An interesting feature of this basketball game will be the natural rivalry existing between the two teams. The Blue Goose team is composed almost completely of former Richland County Basketball stars while the Supplies are composed completely of former Mansfield high Tygers.

On the Blue Goose roster are five former Madison players, Ken Lockhart, Willard Lockhart, Joe Miller, Bob Wilkins and Jake Kopcial. Bob Bogantz upholds the honor of Ontario while of the remaining players, Al Stickler and Jim Wallace are former Mansfield high school luminaries, and Tom Farrell and Dick Talmadge are both from schools outside of the state.

On the Mansfield Athletic Supply team are such former stars of Tyger teams, as Jack Lyons, Noel Morgan, Freddy Lewis, John Burns, Dave Rose, Dave Shelley and Dave Prion.

Insofar as scoring ability is concerned, the Blue Goose Sohioans will enter the game as slight favorites. In their ten league games so far, they have scored a total of 359 points for an average of 35.9 points per game, better than a point a minutet rate. The Supplies in ten battles, have scored a total of 319 points, for an average of 31.9, just 1 under a point a minute average. The record of Blue Goose is due in large measure to the scoring of Al Stickler who is leading the league with 90 points, garnered in seven league contests, for an average of 13 points per game.

In the preliminary game at 7:30, another championship attraction is in store for basketball fans who want to see the final basketball game in the city for the 1940-41 season. This game brings together the Rex Billiards, champions of the Friendly House league, and the B'Nai Brith team, champions of the Y. M. C. A. league.

* * *

Again we have a natural rivalry with the two best known youth organizations in the city battling it out for the honor of their respective leagues.

Gene Autry To Ride In Rodeo

Radio-Movie Star Makes Cleveland Appearance.

CLEVELAND — Gene Autry, number one western star of the movies and number four on the list of the first ten money-makers in the entire motion picture industry, will come to Cleveland to make a personal appearance as the master of ceremonies and featured performer at the fourth annual Rodeo, presented by the American Legion Club at the Arena April 18 through 27.

Autry will bring his own horses for the Rodeo, which will draw more than 250 "top hands" of the entire country and for which wild horses and steers are now being rounded up in Texas, under the direction of Col. Jim Eskew, director of the Rodeo for the American Rodeo Association.

A big corral will be built at the Arena for the animals, and safety screens will be installed. Cash prizes will total more than $5500 with the entry fees added to this.

Autry's famous horse, Champion, was the first horse to fly to New York by airliner when Autry starred in the rodeo at Madison Square Garden. All but two seats of the big transport plane were removed to make space for Champion to sit and be comfortably during his first flight.

BOWLING SCORES

That winsome wench, Miss Perfect 300, beamed broadly last night on mineralite manipulators at Meders, but with her usual reservations. The lady played hard to get.

Art Hilborn, owner of the only 300 rolled on Mansfield alleys this winter, chalked up a 278 for the season's record game in the Club league and George Percy smacked a 255 in the Moose loop.

Art lost his chance on his first ball, starting out with a spare, and then cashing nine straight strikes. He took eight pins on his 11-ball.

Percy got a better start with a six-bagger, then turned up a miss, and followed with four more strikes and 9 pins on his last ball.

Hilborn led the Club league with 195-278-165—638, and Liederkranz took team honors with 945-891-854—2,690.

Babe Meder paced the Moose league with 175-255-256—686 for the evening's best bowling. No. 10 team had a 1,041 game in compiling its leading total on 845—1,041—857—2,743.

George Koontz showed the way in the C league with 215-222-155—592, and Dominion Electric had 813-822-827—2,462.

Inthe Tappan league Carl Wilhs, jr., had 213-188-153—554, and Enamel plant took team honors with 803-798-861—2,662.

Hurlers Cheer Deacon

Vander Meer and Pearson Upset Brooklyn.

CLEARWATER, Fla. — (U.P.) — Manager Bill McKechnie was feeling better today over two question mark hurlers whom the Cincinnati Reds may have to count on heavily for support during their approaching battle to capture their third straight National league pennant.

They are Monte Pearson and Johnny Vander Meer. Shouldering the mound duties yesterday in the Reds' game with Brooklyn, the former Yankee and Vander Meer limited the Dodgers to three runs and six hits as the Rhinelanders won, 7 to 3, to gain an even break in the two-game series.

Pearson looked great. He was much faster than in his two previous starts. The curveball artist allowed only five hits in as many innings. Pearson faced 21 batters and set the Dodgers down in order in the second and fifth frames.

The performance was especially pleasing to Pearson, for the Dodgers had a chance to obtain Pearson for $25,000 but refused to gamble on Monte's arm.

Vander Meer hurled the final four innings in typical Vander Meer style. He gave up seven walks, forcing home the final Dodger tally in the sixth with a single and three walks but he compensated for his seven walks by striking out a similar number.

Frank McCormick and Bill Werber paced the Red offensive of 10 hits with three blows apiece. Werber connected for a home run in the fifth and Jimmy Gleeson hit for the circuit in the seventh.

* * *

The world champions are idle today but travel to Miami tomorrow for the first of a two-game series against the New York Giants. Jim Turner and Elmer Riddle are scheduled to hurl the opener for the Reds.

Tribe Blanks Phillies 1-0

Good Pitch, No Hit Is Again Indian Rule.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians are looking more and more like the 1940 team—plenty of pitching and fielding but no hitting.

The club eked out a 1 to 0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies yesterday behind brilliant pitching by Jim Bagby and Joe Heving. But in posting the decision the Redskins made only four hits, two of them flukes.

Today the Tribe hopes to stage a batting spree at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals. Al Smith and Joe Krakauskas are due to twirl for Cleveland.

Rollie Hemsley got one of the hits yesterday—his first of the spring. The Indians scored on a walk, infield out, wild pitch and Beau Bell's single.

Bagby allowed only one hit in six innings and Heving gave up two in three.

Lou Boudreau, sparkplug shortstop, probably will be out of action the rest of the Fort Myers games. He sprained his ankle in pre-game practice against the Phils.

The Indians tackle the Tigers tomorrow, are idle Thursday and break camp Friday.

Frankie Baumholtz Voted Most Valuable Player.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—When you consider Long Island university's regular-season record, you aren't surprised that the Blackbirds won the national intercollegiate invitation tournament at Madison Square Garden for the second time in three years.

In the course of winning 23 of 25 games, the Blackbirds faced varied opposition, such as Oregon, Rice, Michigan State, Duquesne, De Paul, Butler and Toledo, as well as local rivals. By the time they had gone through that, they had experienced practically everything they would come up against in an eight-team tournament.

POLICE EMPLOY TEAR GAS AT STEEL PLANT

Seek To Halt Trouble In CIO Tie-up at Bethlehem as Workmen Clash.

headed by Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, former University of Wisconsin president.

Shortly after the Bethlehem plant clash, moves for a possible settlement of the strike were made. (The Bethlehem company has orders for more than a billion dollars worth of defense contracts).

A meeting was arranged between a federal conciliator, SWOC officials, and leaders of the Employes Representation Plan.

Howard Curtiss, district SWOC head, announced a four-point program through which he said he hoped for "early termination" of the strike.

The walkout was called by the SWOC because, Curtiss charged, the Employes Representation Plan began what he said was "an illegal" election.

Curtiss said eventually 18,000 men would be out. There are 21,000 employes here, 18,000 eligible for union membership. The ERP, however, claims 16,000 members.

Curtiss asserted that less than 2,000 of the usual shift of 8,000 men were in the plant today.

Although 700 policemen were on duty at the gates of the McCormick plant in Chicago today, a call went out early for 300 reserves.

Several thousand CIO members and sympathizers, paraded streets near the plant, yelling and jeering at non-striking American Federation of Labor and unaffiliated workers filtering into the factory through half a dozen gates.

Stege said he did not know how many workers were beaten up by the "goon squads" but that there was "a lot of 'em."

Police pursued the attackers and Stege said that "10 or more men" had been arrested.

There were no pickets at the actual gates today, and picket shacks had been torn down over night. Leaders of the Farm Equipment Workers Organizing Committee had issued a call for a "mass mobilization" of CIO unionists at the plant gates today.

Workers, presumably American Federation of Labor men for the most part, entered the various gates singly, in twos and threes and groups of four and six. Yesterday the AFL men marched to work in a body to reopen the strike-bound plant, with protection of the police and a court injunction limiting the CIO pickets to 10 to a gate.

The plant closed Feb. 28 after the FEWOC called the strike, to enforce its demands for elimination of piece work, wage increases, and recognition.

The Ford Motor company shut down its Lincoln plant at Detroit yesterday, explaining it was unable to get automobiles frames from the strike-closed plant of Midland Steel Productions corporation.

The frame factory also serves Hudson, Chrysler and several divisions of General Motors. The Lincoln shutdown threw about 3,300 men idle, while the Midland Steel strike directly affected 1,700. CIO United Automobile Workers are asking Midland for wage increases.

The National Die Casting plant at Los Angeles, of great importance to the west coast airplane industry, was open today following settlement of a strike of CIO employes. The union won wage increases and other concessions.

CIO workers at the Edgewater, N. J., plant of the Aluminum Company of America also were back on their jobs while negotiations went forward on their controversy with the company over wage rates and overtime pay.

FAVORITES BID UP FRACTIONS IN MART TODAY

Leaders Neglected as Bonds, Commodities Fail To Show Trends.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Scattered stock market favorites were bid up fractions in today's market but many leaders were neglected.

Stocks getting up occasionally included Youngstown Sheet, Internataional Harvester, Anaconda, Union Carbide, and the preferreds of Gulf Mobile & Ohio and General Steel Castings.

Bonds and commidities failed to develop definite trends.

Earnings statements and heavy defense spending, brokers said, provided the principal speculative props.

Among items considered by market followers were:

The average net operating income of the first 12 railroads to report for February revealed an increase of 52.4 per cent over the like 1940 period.

Federal reserve member banks in 101 cities boosted their commercial, industrial and agricul-loans $40,000.000 in the week ended March 19.

CAN'T BEAT IT

Ohioan's Have Teeth Pulled, But Army Takes Them.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Two of Ohio's "reluctant draftees" today knew—much to their sorrow—that having teeth pulled is a poor way to try to beat the draft.

The draftees, one a Canton truck driver, the other a Defiance county farm youth, will soon be on their way to training camps—but minus 22 teeth, pulled in an attempt to evade the draft, according to Maj. M. Ray Allison, executive selective service officer.

"These are exemplary cases," Major Allison said. "In each instance the draftee, it was found, had his teeth extracted after his first physical examination had placed him in Class 1-A—physically fit for army training."

The Canton man had 16 teeth pulled, the Defiance youth six.

The army waived the teeth requirements in the two cases.

ONE WAY OUT

Draftees Who Become Fathers Can Apply For Dismissal.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Draftees may apply for discharge in cases where they leave working wives who receive a visit from the stork, Maj. M. Ray Allison, of state selective headquarters, announced today.

Several such cases are pending and the husbands will be released from service if the new dependency status can be established, Allison said.

YUGOSLAVS JOIN AXIS AS POWERS EXTEND PLEDGE

Balkan Nation Gets Guarantee Troops Will Not Move Across Country.

non-belligerent ally and close friend of Greece.

2. Bulgarian reports said Greek and German troops had already clashed in frontier skirmishes.

3. Soviet war materials were reported flowing into Turkey, and reliable sources said Russia had halted shipments of vital oil supplies to Germany.

4. Russian army and naval forces, facing German forces in southeast Europe, were reported being strengthened.

5. British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden renewed Britain's pledge to fight at the side of Greece "until final victory is won."

Bitterly-expressed opposition to the pact within Yugoslavia indicated that mere signature by the diplomats might not be the final step in clearing the country for Nazi military use.

Streets in Yugoslav cities were littered last night with manifestos accusing Yugoslav leaders of a traitorous sellout; of bringing "certain shameful death for our country"; and threatening death to submissive government leaders.

Actual warfare was almost at a standstill.

Greek troops claimed to have inflicted heavy losses on Italians attacking yesterday near the Viosa river in Albania.

German and British planes took a holiday from intense night raiding.

Reports reaching Belgrade said Germany had secretly dispatched nearly a quarter million troops into Italy to maintain order and prevent a separate Italian-Greek peace which might interfere with Nazi plans in southeast Europe.

In the war at sea, the British admiralty admitted another heavy toll of shipping losses in the "battle of the Atlantic"—23 British and allied craft totalling 71,773 tons in the week ended March 16.

British Imply Warning On Yugoslav Pact

LONDON —(INS)— Yugoslavia certainly "must be aware of British intentions to attack German forces wherever they may be."

That was the first grim comment from authoritative British sources today when news reached London that Yugoslavia has aligned itself with the Axis powers.

Implicit in this reaction was a warning that British forces may make Yugoslavia a battleground should German troops enter Yugoslavian territory.

In this connection, the London Daily Express affirmed today that Britain's middle eastern army has been strongly reinforced in recent weeks with planes, guns and mechanized units.

Events are moving toward a climax in the eastern Mediterranean, the paper said, and within a short time British troops may be facing the German army in Bulgaria's Struma valley.

Nazis Reported Ready With 800,000 Troops

LONDON—(AP)—Germany has approximately 800,000 troops fully equipped for immediate battle in Balkans, to enforce the German drive toward the southeast and guard the Soviet Russian frontier, a reliable foreign source declared today.

British quarters declined to comment on this report and refused to indicate whether it checked with their intelligence.

Ribbentrop Hits 'Interference'

VIENNA—(INS)—Bitter condemnation of alleged Anglo-American "interference" in Yugoslavia was voiced by Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop today when Yugoslavia signed the tripartite agreement.

"The new order in Europe and East Asia is operating with iron logic and unparalleled precision," Von Ribbentrop said.

"The tripartite pact aims at consolidation of European countries for the new order, while Japan is establishing a new order in East Asia under her own leadership.

"Yugoslavia's entry is especially significant, because with her signing the entire Balkans —hitherto neutral—now have come virtually into the camp of the new order.

"It is also significant because a nation is now joining us that England believed she could still mobilize against the new European order.

"It is understood that English and American quarters interfered with Yugoslavian policy during the last few days in a way which must be called unheard of and which is irreconcilable with respect for the sovereignty of a free nation.

"Therefore Yugoslavia's decision to join the European new order is all the more appreciated."

Germany has neither territorial nor political interests in the Balkans, Von Ribbentrop averred.

British Claim Drop In Losses at Sea

LONDON—(AP)—A British admiralty announcement today showed a drop in Britain's sea losses for the second successive week, while she returns blow for blow in the battle of the Atlantic.

Twenty-three British and Allied merchantment totaling 71,773, tons were lost in the sea war in the week ended March 16, the admiralty said. This compared with total losses of 98,832 tons the previous week and 141,314 tons a week before that.

The British declared that in the same period Britain's own naval and air raiders were sinking almost three tons of Axis ships for every four tons Britain and her Allies lost.

Telephones Censored After Pact Signing

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia—(AP)—A strict telephone censorship was established in this country a few minutes after it signed up with the Axis today.

Correspondents attempting to telephone out of the country found the lines cut whenever they mentioned anything connected with the Axis partners.

Yugoslavia had had telegraph censorship but no telephone censorship until today.

Nazis Claim Hits On Battleship

BERLIN —(AP)— Heavy bomb hits were scored by Nazi air raiders on a British battleship in the Mediterranean southwest of the Greek island of Crete, the German high command declared today.

An "enemy outpost boat" was destroyed there, the Daily War bulletin said, and two large freighters, each of about 8,000 tons, were severely damaged in an air attack on a British convoy south of Crete.

Collapse After Family Tragedy

John Kustro of Herminie, Pa., is pictured bowed in grief with the two remaining youngsters in his family after learning that four of his children, two boys and two girls, ranging from four to nine years of age, were drowned in a slag dump pond near their home. Volunteer firemen who recovered the bodies claimed the children fell through thin ice on the pond's edge while attempting to pull their kite out of a tree.

Sales Rally Opens Tomorrow, $300 In Prizes To Be Given

ested in selling will be given the chance to better themselves and their jobs through the courses which will be known as "Sam Vining's Sales Rally."

V. H. Lodde, secretary of the association, announced today that already more than 600 persons had reserved tickets for the course and that tickets had been distributed to clerks in downtown stores.

Vining will lecture on four topics, in sessions held weekly. His subject for tomorrow night will be "This Business of Selling." Other topics to be included in the course will be "The Customer You Sell," April 3; "The Merchandise You Sell," April 10; and "You, Yourself Incorporated," April 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Shopper as well as sales persons attending the course will be given a chance to compete for prizes in a sales contest to be held the last week of the course.

Sales persons will wear large buttons with their name and a number visible to Mr. and Mrs. Shopper. The latter's part will be to keep a close lookout while shopping for incidents of good salesmanship. They will then write a 200 word letter, explaining their impressions of the clerk's selling device and will send in his name and number.

Judges will select from the letters, the best selling incidents and will award cash prizes to both the sales person and the writer. The Retail Merchants' association will award the prizes.

Vining is rated highly by the Thomas Brady Speakers' Bureau in New York city which books him for appearances throughout the country. The same agency puts him on a level with Lowell Thomas, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Robert Ripley, Senator Gerald P. Nye, and Major Norman A. Imrie.

Many of America's greatest business men have acknowledged Vining as the country's outstanding speaker on problems concerning sales, sales training and sales promotion.

tary sewers, the mayor pointed out.

In the meantime, the city has been by-passing partially treated sewage into Rocky Fork for more than three months.

Mayor Locke said that the by-passing of partially treated sewage during the winter months has not been condemned in other cities, especially in Elyria. He indicated that the city would not attempt any drastic change unless it felt sure that the resulting benefit would be worth the expenditure.

The sewer cleaning equipment, expected to arrive here this week, and the slackening in the amount of rain water running into the sanitary sewers will increase the efficiency of the disposal plant, according to the mayor.

He reported that of the 29,167 cases of unsatisfactory arrangements for storm drainage, 12 per cent had been reported as corrected, and 7½ per cent checked. More than 52 acres of rain water drains into the sanitary sewers at present. Mayor Locke said that this overloads the sewage plant and lessens its efficiency.

Sale Of Car Tags Lags As Deadline Day Draws Near

With only five days remaining until the deadline for the purchase of automobile license plates sales of the tags still lagged today at the Richland County Automobile club, despite the fact that approximately half of the estimated total for March remained unsold.

Approximately 5,000 plates have been issued so far out of 10,225 to be issued from the Auto club offices, officials stated.

While a staff of 18 is employed by the club to handle sales, officials fear that the closing rush will cause inconvenience for the late arrivals.

Club officials expressed no hope for an extension of the purchase period.

The club will remain open Wednesday through Monday, deadline day from 8:30 a. m. to 8 p. m., officials stated.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MARCH 25, 1941.

One trouble about bank night awards is that they are so frequently spent before they are won.

The biggest business now is government. And it has the advantage of all other businesses. It doesn't have to show a profit.

Geologists find that this country's coal supply will last 600 years—but it may take another ton to get through the next month.

Seven Billion Dollar Start-off

ACTING quickly and with surprising unanimity, the senate yesterday afternoon voted appropriation of seven billion dollars as a start-off of the aid-to-Britain program authorized under the lease-lend act.

While the lease-lend measure was approved by a 60-31 vote, following eighteen days debate, the appropriation act passed 67-9 after less than two hours debate. The nine opposing votes were cast by senators who had been most outspoken in attacking the lease-lend proposal and in delaying action thereon.

Under assumption that funds would quickly be made available, President Roosevelt has already made a start on the aid-to-Britain program but it may be expected that the production tempo will now be stepped up with all possible speed.

Some idea of the immensity of intent along this line is gained from a statement made before the senate appropriations subcommittee by Defense Production Director William S. Knudsen, who said that when American arms production really gets under way this nation can turn out war equipment twice as fast as Germany. He also said that three million more men would be employed in the task before the end of the summer, and that two million had been added to factory rolls since last fall.

Next in order will be such effective operation of the defense mediation board as to end present strikes in defense industries and prevent any such exhibitions of disunity in the future—at least until the war has been won.

Lindbergh's Defeatist Preachment

THE MAIN objection to such an article as Colonel Charles Lindbergh's, in the current issue of Collier's, is that some people may regard it as convincing.

The article, entitled "A Letter To Americans," is more specifically addressed to isolationists, in an obvious effort to organize that minority group for pacifist activity.

In his "letter" Colonel Lindbergh assumes an assured tone and a prophetic vision which thoughtful readers will be inclined to question as they consider his limited experience outside the field of aviation.

The "letter," throughout, presents a defeatist attitude and paints a dark picture of future America unless the appeasement policies of isolationists are adopted as a substitute for the present aid-to-Britain program.

England and France, he says, could have stopped Hitler while Germany was rearming, but not now. Nor does he believe that all possible help from the United States will win against the forces of Hitlerism. "We in America have waited until it is too late," he says. "We are unprepared and participation in the war can bring us only defeat and humiliation."

A comment by Dr. Conyers Read, professor of history of the University of Pennsylvania, on the Lindbergh attitude, is interesting. "Where would the United States of America be today," asked Dr. Read, "if those who founded and built this free nation had all been Wheelers and Lindberghs?"

"Most Americans," Dr. Read continued, "are united in their belief that we should give all aid to Britain in the hope and belief that she will, with our aid, be able to defeat the Axis dictators."

In any event, whatever may be the outcome, there can be no honorable retreat from the position which the United States has taken on the side of the embattled democracies, and such utterances as those of Colonel Lindbergh and his isolationist associates will do no more than possibly add somewhat to the difficulties of the task ahead.

Safe Corner Made Dangerous

THE POINT at which East Fourth street merges into Ashland road is not an especially dangerous spot—that is, it wouldn't be if reasonable traffic regulations and speed limits were observed.

East Fourth street, in its approach to Ashland road, is a natural "stop," in addition to being plainly marked as such, and there is no excuse—except carelessness—for barging out on the highway before making sure of safe clearance from both directions.

But, also, there is no excuse for the high speed at which motor vehicles of various sorts are customarily driven on Ashland road inside the city limits, where the maximum legal speed is 35 miles an hour.

For a short time, several years ago, there was a traffic light installation at this point, but it was argued that traffic was hampered thereby and the light was removed.

If "stop and go" lights are to be depended upon for traffic law enforcement this may be a corner at which there is need for a light.

Progress In Public Health

THE LAST CENTURY was a period of unbelievable progress. But in no field was greater progress made than in care of the sick, and in advancing the standards of public health.

A century ago, for instance, anesthesia for surgical operation was unknown—it did not come into use until 1846. And even later, in Civil war days, hospital death rates of 20 per cent and more were not uncommon. Nothing was known of infectious diseases, the germ theory had not been heard of, and sterilization of instruments and dressings was never practiced. Not until 1868 was a start made in curbing and controlling infection.

Startling is the fact that 99 out of 100 American hospitals were founded within living memory. Fifty years ago hospitals were generally confined to large cities—in small towns and rural areas operations took place at home, by light of kerosene lamps and an open vessel steaming on a stove as sterilizer. The medical men were not content. It was largely due to their initiative that hospitals in smaller centers were gradually established.

The whole history of medicine is a history of individual effort—of tireless private initiative—of unselfish men fighting the endless war against disease and public ignorance.

'Aliens' Are People

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ALIEN"—it's getting to be an ugly word. Suspicion is gathering around it in these darkening days. The tide of intolerance is rising, as it rose in the first World war. An alien is no longer merely a person born in a foreign land, who, though living here, has not become an American citizen. He's becoming something different from Regular Folks, someone to fear or hate, regardless of his record. Maybe he's a spy? Or a saboteur? Maybe he helps to wreck our planes . . . derail our trains?

Wild talk; yet it comes easy in high-tension times. I've done some of it myself, despising the foreign sneaks, agitators and parasites who drain our national strength and poison our minds! I'm all for driving such creatures out, like the rats they are. Then abruptly I find myself asking some embarrassing questions.

After all, being foreign born doesn't necessarily make you queer or dangerous, does it? I'd be foreign born, I'd be an alien, if I were living in England or France or Italy. But I wouldn't be different or dangerous. And even though I earned my living and paid my way, I might not want to give up my own nationality. Then why should I condemn those who loved their country as much as I love mine . . . why should I think they were made of different human stuff?

After all, where would America be today, if it hadn't been for aliens? I remember the lusty frontier days of my youth. A good half of those men who broke the wilderness trail, and the deep-bosomed women who turned that wilderness into homes, were aliens. But their shovels struck as deep as any native's, there axes bit as clean, and their hearts were as warm whenever there was human need. Nor did they only give their labor; they gave their Old World skill, their crafts, their conception of beauty. They laid the foundation for American culture.

HARD questions to face when you're excited, but we all should be facing them or we'll have something worse than a Hitler invasion; we'll have a hate invasion that will be worse than poison gas. Of all defense measures we need this most—that we should be informed about the strangers within our gates; that we should treat them with friendship and fairness. Otherwise all our machines and maneuvers are just perpetuating Hell-on-Earth.

There's a book that's good for what ails us all. It should be compulsory reading in every American high school and home. It's Louis Adamic "From Many Lands." And it's about aliens Louis Adamic knows about aliens—he was one himself. He can tell you, as no other American writer can, what dreams and tears, rebellions, defeats and triumphs lie behind the lonely, searching eyes af aliens.

He knows all their homely ways . . . their simple joys and stubborn faith. And he doesn't—thanks be!—write about 'em with an arithmetic book at one elbow and an almanac at the other. For to Louis Adamic, aliens are Just People, different in no way from ourselves — and each life, however obscure, is an exciting colorful drama.

And so he sets them down, not in a bulky sermon or sociological treatise, but in a series of stories about real people, with his own warmth and understanding making them live. There's the story of the successful doctor, and the blank wall of prejudice which he may never hope to pierce in this life. There's Manda Evanich from Croatia . . . Ma and Pa Karas from Bohemia . . . . Mexican Lupe Valdez and his American wife, Helen Smith . . . . people and problems from every country on earth. All honing and struggling in this same land with you, all feeling the same things under their brown or black or golden skins which you feel under your white.

Good things may come from war times, as well as bad. "From Many Lands" is one of the good things, one the deeply necessary things. A book that's bound to change us deeply—and I'll say we need it! We call the foreigner "stupid." But I doubt if there's a people on earth as ignorant, as prejudiced, as provincial about any life outside our little round of chores as we Americans!

Little Chats On Public Notices

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN"

THIS salutation has a familiar ring. Most often you see it on letters and other communications intended to introduce or to identify someone. Another but less common form, serving a somewhat similar purpose, reads, "Know all men by these presents, etc." Both have been handed down for generations. They are part of our English inheritance.

Ordinarily, the legal or public notices appearing in this and other newspapers do not bear any such salutation. Nevertheless this is precisely what legal or official advertising is—a Public Notice to whoever it may concern or affect.

In reality, it is a form of warning that some move or action is planned that involves the rights of other individuals or of the public at large. It is printed in compliance with the law, but it also implies and sometimes so states that unless there is prompt and proper objection the change will be carried out without other notice than as provided by law.

Such a notice may affect or concern you as an individual, or you may have occasion to use it yourself. Many such public notices, especially where they concern public improvements, directly affect you and your neighbors or the entire community. It is highly important, therefore, that such notices be given. It is equally important for them to be read and understood, otherwise the intent of the law is not met.

This Is Ohio

OHIO has one of the leading universities in America for the higher education of the colored race in Wilberforce university, near Xenia.

It was established before the Civil war. A move to provide a seminary for the colored race in Ohio first was launched by Daniel A. Payne, a self-educated negro of Charleston, S. C., and resulted in Union seminary near Columbus being organized in 1844. Wilberforce university grew out of it and was named in honor of the great English statesman, William Wilberforce.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Isolationists Irate at Spending Two Threatened Bolt at Caucus

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—That closed-door caucus of house Republicans which preceded passage of the $7,000,000,000 lend-lease appropriation developed into the hottest debate since Representative Joe Martin has been party floor leader.

Feeling ran so high that at one time two Midwestern isolationists, enraged by the pro-aid-Britain attitude of Republican leaders, loudly disavowed their party and asserted they would vote for Socialist Norman Thomas if an election were held today.

The two were Representatives Harold Knutson of Minnesota and William P. Lambertson of Kansas, both violent opponents of the lend-lease bill. They erupted when Representative John Taber of New York, ranking GOP member of the appropriations committee, and a leading economy advocate, came out flatly for the $7,000,000,000 appropriation.

Explaining his position, Taber contended that the lend-lease program was the "best insurance possible" against the United States getting into the war.

"We need every cent of this seven billion dollars," Taber declared, "to produce the airplanes, tanks, guns and ammunition Britain needs to defend itself and the United States against the encroaching forces of totalitarianism."

But Knutson of Minnesota interrupted him. "I'm surprised at the stand you of all people are taking," he roared. "In the past you have always been a treasury watchdog. What has prompted you to change your colors?"

"I'm not reversing myself," hurled back Taber. "This appropriation is vital to the defense of the United States and I'm for defending the United States up to the hilt. The die has been cast. It is the duty of Republicans and Democrats to give their united support to this program."

"I can't agree with you," shouted Knutson. "The Republican party is committing suicide. It has become a 'me too' party. If I had an opportunity to re-cast my vote in the last election, I would vote for Norman Thomas."

Supports Minnesotan.

LAMBERTSON echoed Knutson, adding that he, too, would vote for the Socialist candidate if he had it to do over again. But only a handful of die-hard isolationists applauded the two dissenters. The great majority of Republicans, including Martin, backed up Taber.

Martin jumped to his feet after Knutson's charge that the GOP was a "me, too," party and challenged him to look at the record.

"The gentleman cannot prove what he says," snapped Martin, usually a soft-spoken diplomat. "We have opposed many things sponsored by the administration and will continue to do so in the future. But this is not a party matter. This is a national issue. That is why I asked for national unity after the lend-lease bill passed, and I urge it just as strongly now."

Note—Next day, in the appropriations committee, Lambertson proposed slashing the lend-lease bill to five billion, whereupon Representative Jack Houston, a Democrat and fellow-Kansan, moved that the sum be raised to ten billion. "I'm doing this," he said, looking Lambertson in the eye, "to demonstrate to the committee that my colleague does not speak for Kansas in opposing aid to Britain." When Lambertson's amendment was smothered 27 to 3, Houston grinned, withdrew his amendment.

Pan American Airways.

THE most scathing castigation of an air-mail contract since the day in 1934 when Jim Farley canceled all of them, was delivered against Pan American Airways last week by counsel for the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Sam Gates of the CAB not only urged that the present mail subsidies be canceled, but demanded that Pan American be made to refund the amounts paid it by the government during the past three years.

"The rates of compensation now being received by Pan American Airways, Inc.," Gates proclaimed, "are excessive and are neither fair nor reasonable."

He made this statement after returning from a complete tour of Latin America, flying over most of the Pan American Airways routes, where he found that Pan-Am did not have a single hard-surfaced runway nor radio range station in Brazil.

Raising the question of Pan American's managerial efficiency, Gates reported that "much of the operation" in Latin America "is no more difficult than the conduct of an airline operation across the United States." Nevertheless, he reported, Pan-Am was receiving from the government six times as much as the average domestic airline.

Because of this subsidy, Gates reported, Pan-Am had made a total profit of $16,000,000 on an investment of only $10,000,000.

"To put it another way," Gates said, "the carrier has made profits during this twelve-year period equal to the total capital employed, plus an over-all profit of 60 per cent."

Favors Competition.

OVER this twelve-year period, Pan American has received a total of some $73,000,000 from the government. Part of this was used for pioneering new lines across the Pacific and Atlantic, for which the Civil Aeronautics Board gives it credit. However, Pan American is now asking a subsidy of $8,180,000 on its Latin American routes next year, instead of the $6,000,000 paid it this year, and this is the question to be determined in the present rate hearings.

Simultaneously, Pan-Am is vigorously opposing a half-million dollar appropriation to American Export Lines to launch a competing line across the Atlantic, and this question is now before the senate appropriations committee.

The White House has taken the stand that competition across the Atlantic is healthy, and favors a rival line.

In contrast, it is interesting to note that Pan-Am built up its system in Latin America during the Hoover administration, when Walter Brown, then postmaster general, sent a note to Secretary of State Stimson asking him to help Pan-Am in its diplomatic negotiations "in preference to any other American company."

This was in contradiction to long-established state department tradition to help all American companies equally.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It was good "duck" weather in Manhattan, with little sun and low, fast-flying clouds skimming the skyscraper spires . . . just the day for the sort of excursion I had in mind. So I got into a cab and went down to 501 Broadway, and for the next two or three hours I wandered through a maze of ancient, fascinating firearms—each with a history and a story to tell if it could only talk.

This is the dark-facaded, dimlit, dusty establishment of Francis Bannerman Sons — dealers in military goods since 1865. After wars they buy up at auctions leftover guns, sabres, pistols, uniforms, all the trampled, discarded baggage of battle.

I SAW a pair of Green fulminating duelling pistols in a case, priced at $465. There were British flint fowling pieces, ancient crossbows such as were used at Hastings, flintlock rampart guns; long, black muzzle-loading rifles used at Green Mountain; Civil war cannon, saddles, sabres, six-shooters (cap and ball), bridles, canteens, cartridge belts.

I bought a cracked, blackened (with age and dirt) holster for a Colt-44 for $1.50 . . . "You're not buying a holster," the man who waited on me said. "You're buying a relic."

If you know anything about guns, or merely if you like guns, you cannot imagine the satisfaction that comes with actually picking up and handling those ancient flintlock rifles that threw off clouds of black smoke as well as shot and which played their parts in the desperate birth of this country.

In one corner were "20 pounders"—Parrot muzzle-loading rifle cannon used by the U. S. navy 75 years ago. . . . There was 8-inch smooth-bores from the U. S. Frigate Wabash. These cannon weigh 6,550 pounds and were used in blockading southern ports during the Civil war.

There were bows and arrows from the savage tribes of the Congo, Turkish daggers, Oriental bladed weapons of every description, and one tiny little hand-pistol, found in China and perhaps one of the first pistols ever made, with a price tag of $500 on it. Prussian, Russian, Belgian, French, English and Chinese swords they have in abundance. Some of the Revolutionary war swords have officer's initials engraved on the blade. Imagine grasping in your hand the blade carried by Marion the Swamp Fox!

HEAVY with dust and in tatters are battle flags from many hard fought fields. These are not for sale. It is a pity they are not under glass, rather than exposed to the ravages of changing temperatures.

Unharmed by temperature is a picturesque assortment of armor: antigue Irish breastplates, dug up outside the walls near Londonderry, and the breastplate that belonged to one of Cromwell's officers. Spanish, French, Scotch and Italian coats of mail. I spent several hours staring at this stuff, but one needs a day, nay, many days. There are signs all over the place requesting customers to refrain from handling the guns . . . But who could resist reaching out and touching things like that? I couldn't, and nobody said anything to me.

A Farmer's Diary

Adventurous Squirrel

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WALKED through the woods on the hilltop above our house, during a blizzard. I love to hear the wind roar through the branches of the leafless trees. In fact I have not missed a single heavy gale that swept over our woods all winter — unless it were at night.

There is rhythm and music, like tones of a great organ—up and down the scale, from high treble to deep bass.

I went by a white oak tree, on top of which a crow's nest clung—a loosely constructed nest of sticks, shreds of old chestnut bark, and last year's leaves. I watched the tall slender top move in the wind, and outer leaves of the nest went scudding like missiles in the direction of the hurrying flakes. I thought, many times, the nest would fall, for it rocked precariously, but always it settled back into the crotch on which it rested.

I looked through my field glasses, to see if any creature would be so foolish as to ride a storm like this concealed in so crude a house. I imagined I saw a drab nose sticking up and a bit of frisky tail—and so I sheltered myself from the wind behind a big maple and kept the glasses trained upon the old nest.

It was so cold that I shivered like a short-haired dog driven from a winter kitchen. Then I saw a gray squirrel lean from the center of that shabby nest and dart out on a slender branch, 30 feet or more above the snowy woodland floor.

He was having a grand time! The tossing slender limb did not frighten him. Every sudden gust seemed to give him strange delight. Even the moist, icy bark that must have frozen during the night, gave him no concern. He moved with sureness and agility.

Surely, I thought, he must be a little mad! Would not a snug nest safe inside a hollow tree be a better home for any self-respecting squirrel? Why should he prefer an open, swinging, wind-swept hammock of a crow's nest—that even the crows themselves would spurn another spring? Yet there he was—a hermit, certainly, for surely he could not ask another to share such a meager shabby home.

Yet, I am positive, when skies are pleasanter, and blood root and trilliums peep up from the moist woods floor, and south wind blows—there will be a pert and loving mother squirrel there to share the fullness of his joy that spring has come. And the last of May or early June, when the woods is a miracle of growth and bloom, tiny furry babies will live and grow in this crude rugged home, high in the treetop.

COLLECTORS

OBERLIN, O. — (UP) — Oberlin College co-eds have formed an organization to provide entertainment for men in military services of the United States.

The organization is called the committee for intercollegiate aid to American soldiers and sailors. Its purpose is to collect playing cards and games for young men undergoing military training. Students in other colleges have been asked to form similar committees and to send in reports to the Oberlin group which will act as a clearing house for information.

COUNTY'S SELECTIVE SERVICE BOARDS NAME REPLACEMENTS

Richland county selective service boards today had chosen nine men to go to the Fort Hayes induction station in Columbus Saturday as replacements for county men rejected at the station during the past month.

Board 1 had four replacements to make and Board 2 will send five replacements with the group. Board 3 has filled its quotas to date.

In the group scheduled to leave Saturday are two of the six youths who were freed last week by the county grand jury. The boys volunteered and passed their physical examinations here. They are Robert H. Shaw, 16½ North Diamond street, and James Palm, Mansfield R. D. 2. Shaw will leave from the Board 1 district and Palm from Board 2.

Others selected by Board 1 as replacements are Edward E. Sturges, 248 Poplar street; Edwin L. Laipply, 301 Bulkley avenue, and William Hoover Wendell, Columbus.

Named by Board 2, in addition to Palm, were:

Harry L Ammeter, 635 Lexington avenue; Francis Seibert Hill, Mansfield; Gerald F. Shutt, Woodville road, and John E. Harfman, R. D. 4.

A contingent of 48 selectees is scheduled to leave Mansfeld by bus Thursday morning in the final regular call for men from Richland county. Another group of about 35 men will leave April 3.

FATE STEPS IN

READING, Pa.—(UP)—Three-year-old Gladys Dietrich is pondering the injustice of fate. Stepping out of the door of her home, the child was struck in the leg by a bullet which was not fired from any gun.

A boy down the street had told his sister to discard the used shells from his .22 rifle. The girl threw the cartridges onto a warm ash pile. The heat exploded a loaded one among them. The bullet went through a fence and struck Gladys.

ELIMINATE JOB

Commissioners Abolish Nurse Post at T. B. Sanatorium.

Richland county commissioners said today they will eliminate the post of county T. B. nurse, effective April 15, leaving the work of the nurse to the staff of the Richland County T. B. Sanatorium.

It was originally planned to do away with the job March 31, Commissioner Guy Stewart said, but the contract of Mrs. Margaret Adams, who has held the post for the past three years, was extended to April 15 while the new plan is placed in operation.

Mrs. Adams has been employed by the county for the past three years to investigate T. B. cases. During that time she has worked with the city and county health departments in the handling of case investigations. She has received $160 a month.

EGG IS MYSTERY

BAYARD, Neb.—(INS)—Mrs. H. K. Ostermiller rubbed her eyes and then she rubbed the egg, but the numbers "1005" just grew plainer. She looked about the nest for a newspaper or some printed material which high have stamped the newly-laid egg, but there was none. The figures appeared on the shell a quarter-inch high.

Navy Influence Shown This Year In Smart Fashions

The United States navy is a big influence in feminine styles this spring. Navy blue hats, coats, dresses, and accessories are the rage, all of them trimmed with sparkling insignia in gold or silver braid and stitching. Broad sailor collars, of the middy-blouse type, are ornamenting many of the coats and dresses. On the daintier afternoon frocks these are often made of the sheerest, crispest of organdie, giving the gowns a jauntiness that the sailor attains by the saucy tilt of his hat.

Navy fashions are bound to be popular with the ladies, not only because of their pride in the navy but also because these fashions flatter the face and figure. Styles have been developed for southern and for northern wear, just as the navy issues two types of uniforms for Jack Tar. The warm climate modes are usually created in white fabrics with touches of navy blue in the trimming. Buttons are often in the shape of small anchors or stars, to give a thoroughly nautical atmosphere.

The reason our sailor boys always look so snappy is because they are required to wash their uniforms often, and there is a hint in that fact for the women who are going to wear sailor-inspired clothes this spring. To be smart and swagger looking, clothes should always be clean. Most of them will take laundering with the same ease as the uniforms the navy men wear. Certainly the white collars and the white dresses will need frequent washing. They can't take the kind of treatment that the sailors give their white duck uniforms, but gentle immersion in mild, lukewarm suds will give them a snowy whiteness that reflects credit on the wearer and on the navy which inspired the mode.

BEWARE OF WORMS

Inside you or your child

Do you know that roundworms can cause great distress? And they are so easy to "catch" that thousands of grown-ups and children have these bowel worms without even recognizing the symptoms.

So watch out for these signs: Fidgeting; itchy nose and seat, uneasy stomach, restless sleep. If you even suspect roundworms get Jayne's Vermifuge to drive them out before they can "get set" and cause trouble.

Jayne's is America's leading proprietary worm medicine; used by millions, for over a century. It expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. When no worms are there, it works just as a mild laxative. Play safe! Ask for Jayne's Vermifuge! At all drug stores.

Red Nose Beauty Bother

By MME. QUI VIVE.

There are noses that register their dislike for cold weather by trying to look like a stop light. Like some individuals who live in the north, they have a Florida complex; want summer all the year round. A cold wind makes them mad; they flare up with indignation. That is pretty tough on those who have them. It is no help in their efforts to be attractive to the eye.

More blondes than brunettes sob about rosy noses. The brunette skin, being hardier than that of the blond, is fairly weather proof. The light-headed sisters have skins that are delicate and thin; the cuticle is usually sensitive, not only to harsh winds but to strong sunlight. There isn't enough of the epidermal coat to defy frosty air.

First aid will be found in a tube of ointment of zinc oxide. After the facial tubbing at night, dry the flesh gently, spread on the ointment. Don't friction it in. The less the flaming nose is disturbed with massage, the better. In the morning, if the ointment has not disappeared, remove it with a soft cloth that has been dipped in witch hazel.

The nose that is red all the time is not to be held responsible for its crimson glow. It is suffering from some form of infection or it is the victim of a stomach that is the victim of a diet that contains too much rich food.

The diet should be balanced. The rule is: carbohydrates four parts, protein one part, fats one part.

The girl who enjoys the cocktail hour had better watch out. Alcohol, even in moderation, may cause redness of the skin. If there is an inclination to redness, tepid water should be used for washing the face, never hot. Cold rinses should be dispensed with.

Highly spiced dishes, condiments, salty and acid foods should be taken in moderation when the rosy nose flourishes. They should be taken in moderation even when it doesn't.

Know your cosmetics. They're all pretty safe these days, but it is possible that the skin will have a phobia against certain ones. If there is undue redness, it is wise to make a change.

Don't overlook the fact that a powder with an oily base forms a protective barrier against the ravages of cold winds. Use a cream immediately after coming in from exposure to the weather. Oily cosmetics condition the skin so they can withstand a lot that complexions find disturbing—atmospheric dust, for instance.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

For a long second, I thought that either Carolyn had not heard me, or that she did not intend to admit me. Then I heard the slithering of bedclothing, and then the soft pattering of slippered feet across the floor.

I stepped back from the door, and the next instant it opened the merest crack to reveal Carolyn in pretty pajamas, but with a distinctly sullen look on her face.

"What it is?" she asked.

I put my hand against the door, and pushed it, gently, but decidedly.

"I can't talk out here," I whispered. "Your mother would hear. Let me in! I don't dare stay but a minute, but I must talk to you."

She took her hand from the door and stepped backward. I promptly shoved the door open wider, entered, and close it again.

"Where is Mother?" she asked, standing straight and rebellious before me, and not even offering me a chair. But I cared nothing for the omission of the courtesy, as I had no time to sit down. But it was an indication of Carolyn's reaction to me, something, however, which I already knew, and to tell the truth, about which I cared no whit.

"She is down in the library with your father, Uncle Dicky and Ronald," I answered, purposely leaving her brother's name to the last.

She paled perceptibly and caught her breath as I finished speaking.

"Ronald!" she repeated. "Mother said he wouldn't come out of his room, hadn't been out for days, wouldn't see anybody."

"I know," I assented, "but he finally consented to talk to me a little while ago."

"To you" she repeated, and her very inflections were insulting.

"Yes, to me," I said imperturbably," and after our conversation, your mother and father went up to him. Then he bathed, shaved and dressed, and is now downstairs waiting for dinner. But I must tell you what I have to say quickly, for my minute is already gone, and I must not be found here."

"No, you mustn't," she agreed. "Mother would think I was holding out something on her. What's happened? You haven't come to tell me that I must talk to Ronald?"

Her voice was certainly raucous and panic-stricken.

"Hush" I said with authority. "Someone will hear you. I've come to tell you three things."

"First, Ronald has promised he will not ask you a single question, either about Marion, or about the things you tried to engineer on the journey up here."

"You told him about them!" she said accusingly. "You promised you wouldn't."

"I promised I would say nothing to your mother and father, if you didn't make it necessary," I answered. 'I have kept that promise. They know nothing, and will know nothing, if you continue to keep your part of the bargain."

"But telling Ronald was a different matter," I went on. "He is entitled to know everything that has happened concerning Marion—"

"How does what I did concern Marion?" she flashed.

"I fancy you could tell that better than anyone else." I told her coolly, and her face crimsoned, though her eyes were stubborn.

"At any rate Ronald knows everything we know, and this brings me to the third thing. Ronald is going up with you and Uncle Dicky tomorrow to Weirhampton. I am not going, for I probably shall go back to New York by train, although I do not wish you to say that until I give you permission. Indeed, I do not wish you to repeat anything of what I have just said to your mother or father."

"I'd be likely to tell them this stuff, wouldn't I?" she asked bitterly.

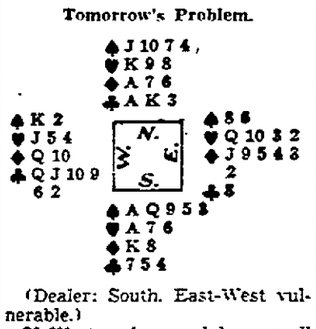
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If West makes a club overcall during the bidding and then leads his club Q against South's 4-Spades, how should South play the hand?

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

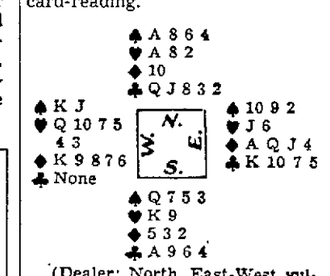
BY

Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAS HE A HIGHER ONE?

Whenever your partner takes a trick on the defense with a fairly high card, you may ordinarily be assured he was unable to take it with a lower one, or he would have done so. You may be reasonably sure then that, if he has anything else in that suit, it will be higher than the card he used. Making a simple deduction like that is the kind of plain, ordinary common sense which some people dignify with the fancy name of "card sense," but it is nevertheless the very sort of thing which produces the most beautiful part of the game—keen card-reading.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass

West led his heart 5, the J forcing the K. South decided to ruff some diamonds, so led to the 10, the J winning. East, desirous of a heart ruff on the third round, returned his heart 6 to the A and the club Q was offered from dummy. East read South as having four, from the bidding, so that his partner could trump this. He therefore covered with the K, forcing the A, and West won with the spade J.

Reading why his partner had led the second heart, West returned his heart Q. Here is where East fumbled the ball badly. He ruffed with his spade 4, and South over-ruffed with the 5. The spade A and Q settled the remaining trumps, and the declarer took all the rest of the tricks except one club, lost to East's 10.

East should have paid more attention to the size of the card with which West ruffed the club trick. It was the J. South, having shifted from his supported spades to his partner's clubs during the bidding, probably had only four spades, therefore West must have either the Q or K in addition to the J, which he played. Figuring thus, East should have ruffed that third heart with his 9 instead of the 4. This would have forced declarer's Q. When the A later dropped West's spade K, the 10 would have become good for a trick in East's hand, defeating the contract.

Here is a new cocktail. Dip small button mushrooms in highly seasoned mayonnaise and broil until well browned. Stick with picks and pass.

Wants Child To Appreciate Language

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Often in this column I have urged parents to read to the baby and young child. Usually I had in mind the best education of the child. Yet the mother who reads to the child is educating herself also; she is improving her ease and forcefulness of speech, rendering reading to the child doubly effective for his language development.

"My Dear Dr. Myers:—I read your daily column in the paper and find it a great help in rearing my little girl, who will soon be four years old.

"I want my daughter to know the charm of beautiful English well-spoken and I know that she must get this from the home. However, neither my husband nor I are well educated. After completing the eighth grade, my husband had to work on the home farm, while I had only three years of high school.

"I read good books and find that these help me a lot, but I believe there must be a correspondence course that would help us considerably. I would like to receive your selected list of books and pamphlets on understanding and guiding the young child; also the list of books to read to the young child. A self-addressed stamped envelope is enclosed."

The Answer.

I am glad to enclose the lists of books you requested. You and your husband are better educated than you think. I certainly do admire your zeal for self-improvement.

It might be well for you to take a correspondence course in some special field of information. But for the purpose you state, I should not recommend any course. You say you have been reading good books. Go on doing so. Read aloud to each other, you and your husband, from some of the masterpieces which you find on high school reading lists. There is nothing better than the Bible to read from aloud to improve your forcefulness and beauty of speech. Also include some of the works of the great poets.

If you will read daily to that little daughter from the enclosed list and keep on reading to her from harder books after she enters school, you will have done about the best thing I can think of to cultivate good speech. Mothers who read to their tots, especially from the folk tales of the ages, do more for their own education than they realize.

Please remember that beautiful and well-spoken English does not necessarily mean long words. Rather, the most beautiful English abounds in short words, such as are found in the Bible, Robinson Crusoe, Pilgrim's Progress, Treasure Island and speeches of Abraham Lincoln, who by the way, learned his forceful English by reading aloud.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. Suppose the clerk at the corner drug store called you up and said your child stole something from his store.

A. I would calmly tell my child what the clerk told me. If the child insisted he had not taken the object, I would accept his word but answer: "Since the man at the drug store says you did I must go and pay him for the thing he thinks you took. You will go with me to see me pay him. From now on until we change the rule, you must never go into that store unless you are with some responsible adult. I shall tell the druggist so. If you go there without this guidance you will be punished." And I would tell him exactly what the punishment would be and be sure that he could count on my word.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 26.

The planetary configurations governing this day may be of the utmost significance for unique, audacious and well-planned enterprises of an advanced objective and ambitious scope, even those with ideals, ideas and aims that may be considered visionary, ultra or untenable. However, there is a definitely practical and stabilizing influence at work to balance such temerity, possibly the attainment of approval and capital from influential personages through the very novelty or strange scope of the project. Public recognition is in order, but exercise due caution and sound judgment lest there be sudden and disastrous let down.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of extraordinary experiences or adventures, with strange, novel and unique enterprises getting not only public acclaim but the substantial support of those in high financial circles. This despite certain peculiar, visionary and audacious aspects to such enterprises, which should be promoted with precaution and sanity as well as with alertness to fraud, intrigue or some sinister involvement, which might prove a major disaster to the highest ambitions.

A child born on this day should be endowed with many singular and perhaps startling talents and characteristics, with a trend toward the unique, ultra modern and visionary. These, however, will attract financial support and public acclaim.

JAM BUNS

Jam buns are something new and delightfully appetizing. When the buns are ready for the oven, make indentations in each bun with a spoon and quickly fill with your favorite jam. Bake immediately. Blackberry jam gives a grand flavor.
